BLOODY PRIZE FIGHT

Ike Weir and Billy Murphy Punch Each Other for Six Rounds.

Blow After Blow Rained on the Latter Until He Was Finally Knocked Through the Ropes and Done For.

BOSTON, Nov. 2.-Ike Weir, the Belfast spider, and Billy Murphy, of New Zealand. fought six murderous rounds at the Cribb Club here to-night, Murphy was knocked clean through the ropes in the sixth round. and though his seconds picked him up and thrust him through the ropes, Referee Johnny Eckhart, of the Coney Island Athletic Club, awarded the fight to Weir. Both men were badly used up and Murphy had to be carried from the ring. His face showed marks of the terrible punishment, while Weir's was scarcely disfigured. Before the Weir-Murphy fight, Mike Sears, of Lewiston, Me., champion bantam-weight of New England, and Dave Ross, of Somer- a lease until Jan. 1. The fact is the park ville, fought nine rounds. Both men were is now in control of the park commission, badly off when the referee gave the fight to Ross to prevent interference on the part of the police. Then the Weir-Murphy fight came off. Weir's seconds were Billy Hennessy and Lewis Hodgkins, Behind Murphy were Johnny Griffin, Jim Gibbons and

Murphy led off the fighting with a vicious blow on Weir's face. Weir retaliated, and the skin came down off Murphy's eye and the blood followed. Then there was some hot fighting, with Weir skipping around the ring and practicing his famous jig step. Murphy got into him on the neck with his right, and Weir fought savagely, getting in fully a half dozen blows before time was called. No advantage for either man. In the second round Murphy hit Weir with his right, and Weir chased him around the ring and got in his left on Murphy's jaw. The men grappled. Weir got in a swinging right - hand blow on Murphy's other eye, and both were black and bloody when time was called. Weir led off in the third with a vicious blow on Murphy's jaw, and he fell on the ropes. Murphy grappled, and showing signs of weakness, and Weir got in three blows in quick succession on Murphy's face that staggered him. He clinched and Weir went down. His seconds again time was called. Weir started the fighting the fourth with a blow on Murphy's nose and Murphy retaliated and knocked Weir through the ropes with a blow on the neck. Weir recovered and came up with blow after blow on Murphy's nose and face, and Murphy clinched to save being knocked out. Several times it looked as if he would drop, but he held up until time was called, clinching to save a knockout blow. Weir fought savagely in the next. It was a vicious round. Murphy slashed right and left and Weir began to get groggy. He dodged Murphy's blows and fell several times to avoid punishment. Murphy was fighting desperately all this time. He got in a blow with his right on Weir's neck that stretched him on his back. He got up to his knees and waited until the timekeeper counted nine seconds, then he struggled to his feet and Murphy sent him down again with a blow on the same place. Weir struggled to his feet and the two men clinched. Science was now forgotten, and foul blows were frequent. Weir was pretty far gone when a third blow from Murphy keeled him over just as time was called. The men came from their corners somewhat freshened in the sixth round. They sparred cautiously and then slugged viciously. Weir got in a swinging blow between Murphy's eyes and he dropped like a log Buncoed Out of $5,000. GREENSBURG, Pa., Nov. 2.-George Trauger, a wealthy farmer eighty-four years old, living at Pleasant Unity, was buncoed out of $5,000 yesterday by two strangers who worked the tin-box scheme. It was the old story of wanting to buy a farm, followed he drew from a bank. The money was in the box and given to Trauger for safe keeping. When he opened it the money was gone. There is no clew to the swindlers.

THOSE BEER AWARDS

First Prize Taken from St. Louis and Given to Milwaukee.

You want to increase your trade | Singular Conduct of World's Fair Judges That Will End in the Courts-Ferris Wheel Still Turning.

> CHICAGO, Nov. 2.-There is a question about the beer awards. The matter was taken as settled a week ago, when it was announced that the highest number of points had been won by the Anheuser-Busch brewers, of St. Louis. Now it appears three of the judges, who constitute a majority of the jury, have made a change in the figures previously reported which gives the greatest number of points to the Pabst brewery, of Milwaukee. The report, which will come before John Boyd Thacher. chairman of the committee on awards, before a finding is made, is written by Christian Wahl, of Milwaukee, and L. B. Lund, of Great Britain, and concurred in by Mr. Rolfe, of West Virginia. Colonel Weigel, of St. Louis, and Professor Litchenfeld, of Germany, the other two judges, protest that their associates have unwarrantedly changed the figures of analysis given by Professor Wiley, the chemist employed for the work. Their contention is that the Milwaukee concern had ninety-seven points and that Professor Wiley's figures were gave it ninety-nine points, and put it one point ahead of St. Louis, Professor Wiley's book of analysis, on file at Mr. Thacher's office, bears out this statement. Mr. Thacher said this morning that he had only in-direct information of the subject matter. It was his recollection that a change was made in the chemical analysis of one beer, and he had been told that Professor Wiley ordered it done, the Professor explaining that he had overlooked some chemical property. Mr. Thacher said that if any irregularity were shown his department would investigate and might order a re-examination. Otherwise the decision of the three > judges would stand. There will doubtless be a red-hot contest over the awards, as the brewers concerned are the two biggest in the country and are uncompromising rivals. One hundred points were made the highest mark that could be reached. These were divided as follows: Chemical analysis, 45; brilliancy, 15; flavor, 20; commercial value, 20. The chemical analysis was made for the jury by Prof. Wiley, as stated above. It was understood that when he found a trace of foreign matter in any of the component parts it would count 2 against the score. Professor Wiley's book gives Pabst 43 points on three different brands. Upon the other points which were considered by the jury itself, the jury was agreed. Yesterday Messrs. Wahl, Lund and Rolfe filed a report with John Boyd Thacher, chairman of the committee on awards, which gives Pabst 45 points on one brand known as "Hof-Brau." That was 2 points ahead of Professor Wiley's finding, and it put the Milwaukee brewery 1 point ahead of Anheuser-Busch on the total score. The Ferris wheel kept turning to-day in spite of the order of Director-general Davis to stop it. But it did not make much money, as the Director-general closed up both entrances to the Midway. The Ferris wheel people claim their contract and the exposition authorities are obliged to vacate it as quickly as possible. There is nothing to be seen here now except the outside of buildings and the waters of the lagoons that have no signs of life upon them. The electric launches and gondolas have practically ceased running. The interior of the big buildings are looking bare after two days of hard moving, and nearly all of the exhibits yet remaining are covered up. A double track has been extended from the terminal station to the east end of the Electricity Building, and a number of cars are upon it. A track across goes to the west end of Transportation Building. The erstwhile peace of the White City is disturbed by the sound of workmen's hammers and the rumble of heavy wagons. Very few visitors are coming in.

The Columbian Museum fund was given another big lift to-day by a check for $50. 000 from Mrs. George D. Sturgls. She subscribes the amount unconditionally. Mrs. Sturgis is the widow of the late George D. Sturgis, who was president of the Northwestern National Bank.

Alger six hundred newsboys of this city left here at 9 o'clock this evening for Chicago to spend a day at the world's fair. They are divided into twelve companies, each of which is officered by a captain, whose duty it is to keep the boys together. The Newsboys' Band accompanied the little tourists, who will arrive in Chicago to-morrow morning. Ar-rangements have been made for their reception at the fair by President Thomas W. The paid admissions at the fair to-day were 8,642.

Band of Indians Arrested.

CHAMBERLAIN, S. D., Nov. 2 .- A party of over one hundred lower Brule Sioux are under arrest at Lower Brule agency. They are a remnant of a faction at that agency who have for years fought all attempts to induce them to remove to the new reservation set apart for them further up the Missouri river. Several weeks ago they left the agency and went to the aban-doned Fort Randall military reservation down the river and took possession of some of the vacant post buildings. Their flight was discovered and two Indian policemen were sent by the Indian agent to order them to return home. This order they treated with contempt and refused to obey. Last week twenty Indian policemen, accompanied by two white agency employes, all fully armed, went to Fort Randall with orders to bring the Indians in by force if necessary. The runaways surrendered without a struggle and accompanied

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.-Six men killed, others supposed to be dead under the ruins a dozen persons injured, several horses dead and property damaged to the extent of about $10,000 is the sum total of the havoc wrought by the explosion of a boiler this afternoon. It was in the stables of the Dry Dock, East Broadway and Battery street railway on East Fourteenth street, between Avenues A and B. Following is a list of the dead so far as known:

JOHN ARMSTRONG, engineer.
JOHN ARMSTRONG, engineer.
JOHN ROYAL, laborer.
JOSEPH C. QUINN, laborer.

CHARLES BRESLYN, laborer. Of the injured this is but a partial list as many who were hurt disappeared from MICHAEL M'DONELL, at Bellevue Hos-

ANNIE and MYRTLE GALLAGHER, cut JOHN REINFRANK, cut by glass. and those employed in the stables who live near by had just ceturned from lunch. In that portion of the stables to which the explosion was confined about 150 men were at work, mostly on the ground floor-the building is three stories and of brick-banking up corn and grain. The entire fronts raised from forty-three to forty-five, which of the two stable buildings, Nos. 535 and 537 had been blown into the street. The second floor, on which was banked hundreds of tons of fodder, fell, going through into the cellar. Next the roof fell. The destruction of the building was complete and terrible. But few people were passing along Fourteenth street at the time of the explosion. One horse car with a solitary passenger stood in front of the building? There was a mighty roar, a crash of falling bricks and broken timber. Like a shot the boiler was lifted out of the stable and flew across the street. It struck the tenement directly opposite with a shock that shook the whole block. Windows were smashed everywhere in the vicinity. Screams from the wounded rang out wildly. Women with children in their arms rushed in a frantic panic to the street, and a cloud of dust and debris of building material shot high in the air. It was not until several minutes had gone by that anyone could realize what had happened. Fireman John Henry was passing up the street a block away. The shock lifted him from his feet. He turned, and, seeing what had happened, sent in an alarm. HOW SOME WERE KILLED.

Men struggling with wounds came from the ruins. There were three who never moved. Thomas Hassan was standing in front of a railing just across from the stable. A corner of the boiler struck him on the body and skull and sent him flying twenty feet. He never breathed again. Pieces of flying timber struck Breslyn on with the exposition virtually amounted to | the head and he never moved from where he had fallen. Samuel Mullin was standing in the street. A piece of stone weighing fifty pounds struck him and killed him instantly. The two little Gallagher children, Annie and Myrtle, were playing in the street in front of their home. Fragments of brick struck them and they fell bleeding from a dozen wounds. No. 545 is a double tenement. On the ground floor, east side, John Ruhl has a liquor store, and on the west side of the hallway John Peters has a little grocery. The end of the boiler struck the upper corner of the liquor store. Ruhl's bar was demolished. The lower section of the building was carried away and with it fell the whole front of the second story. Ruhl's family live there, but fortunately not one of its members was in the house at the time. Peters was in his store at the time, when a mass of brick struck him on the left leg, carrying away some of the flesh. At No. 536 there is a Chinese laundry. The windows here were crushed in and the interior was demolished Next door William Darl has a barber shop. Darl was shaving a customer at the time, and was knocked down. The customer was thrown from the chair and ran through the street almost smothered in dust and lather. The side of a car was demolished and two horses were killed. The lone passenger in it escaped uninjured. Fifteen minutes after the explosion a hundred firemen and a dozen ambulance surgeons were on the scene. The firemen found no flame to fight, but the surgeons had their hands full. They went rushing around everywhere, for the wounded were lying at all points. Six of the unfortunates did not need their attention. The others had their wounds bound up and the ambulance stook them away to the hospitals. The firmen went to work on the ruins like Trojans. The men employed in the company's office and the men of the vicinity volunteered their aid, and soon the ruins of the stable were dotted with men.

When first the work of clearing away the ruins began the groans that came from be-neath them told the rescuers that some one was there, and if the men who worked hard and well needed any stimulus that was sufficient. After an hour had gone by a mass of broken lumber was carried away and the dead body of a horse was disclosed. A piece of rope was tied to it and it was dragged to the street. The removal of the horse resulted in another horrible discovery. Directly under the spot where the horse had lain the men found the mangled body of a hostler. His face was hardly recognizable.

The boiler was of the Lowe patent make. manufactured at Bridgeport, Conn., and was four feet six inches in diameter by twelve feet in length. There was scarcely a bulge in its sides. The riveting on the bottom showed that the immense cylinder had been torn out at the roots. Sergeant Washington Mullin, of the boiler inspecting bureau, says the explosion was caused by an overpressure. Engineer Armstrong, it is said, was not licensed to run a boiler of the pattern that exploded. He was only permitted by law to run a tubular horizontal boiler.

City of Alexandria Destroyed and a Number of Lives Lost.

HAVANA, Nov. 2.-The steamship City of Alexandria, belonging to the New York and Cuba Mail Steamship Company, from Havana and Matanzas, for New York, bas been burned off Cojimas. The news was brought to this city early this moraing, when a small boat, in which were the second officer and eleven other persons from the Alexandria, entered the harbor and reported the loss of the steamer. They say that an explosion occurred yesterday afternoon on board the steamer, and shortly after she was burning flercely. The cause of the explosion is unknown. The fire gained such headway that Captain Hoffman saw it would be impossible to save the vessel, and orders were given to abandon the ship. The steamer had four hundred hogsheads of sugar on board, and this, when it caught fire, caused immense masses of flames to ascend from the batchways, the hatches having been blown off.

There was great excitement on board, but the officials soon succeeded in restoring order. As soon as the fire alarm was sounded the crew went to their fire stations and the stewards began to carry provisions to the boats. There was comparatively little sea running and but slight difficulty was experienced in lowering away the boats, when the bell forward tolled the signal "abandon the ship." The scene of the burning steamer was only twenty-five miles from Havana, and the officer in command of the boat had little fear of not reaching that port or some other place along the

In the first moment of terror several men are said to have jumped into the sea. Those who arrived in the small boat said that sixty had been drowned, many them through the upsetting of a boat. Later reports show, however, that none of the small boats upset and those at first reported lost reached Barancola in safety. The number drowned is now believed to be twenty-five or thirty. When the news of the disaster reached here a number of tugs were sent to the burning steamer to render what assistance they could. Two of the tugs returned bringing nineteen rescued from the vessel. The City of Alexandria was one of the fastest and largest of the American ships employed in the West Indies trade. She was an iron screw steamer of 2,480 tons burden. She was 307 feet long, and 36 feet in depth of hold. She was built in 1879, by The explosion occurred about 1 o'clock, John Roach & Sons, at Chester, Pa. CHICAGO, Nov. 2.-Members of the circus firm of Sells Brothers have commenced proceedings against the province of New South Wales to recover $500,000 damage, and have led the attack by issuing an attachment on all the property which the Australian province exhibited at the world's fair. The cause of the suit dates back three years, when, on an extended tour, the circus attempted to land at New South Wales. The port authorities thought that a dangerous disease had broken out among the circus horses, and quarantined the entire outfit, and later orders were issued, according to the plaintiffs' allegations, to kill about half of the show's horses. After slaughtering the animals the company was allowed to land. The circus people will now endeavor to secure payment for their lost

Assassin Prendergast Arraigned Before Judge Horton.

WAITING FOR AN ATTORNEY

"Worst Man That Ever Lived in Charlotte County" Hanged.

Special to the Indianapolis Journal. CHICAGO, Nov. 2.-Patrick Eugene Prendergast was arraigned before Judge Horton, to-day, and the trembling wretch, in tones that could scarcely be heard five feet away, pleaded not guilty. Bailiffs and deputy sheriffs, who had been distributed about the court room, immediately quelled any excitement caused by the crowding forward of spectators, and the prisoner rallied from his paroxysm of fright to announce that he had no attorney, but he expected to get one soon. At 11 o'clock the door that connected the Criminal Court room with the fail opened quietly and the prisoner entered. Heavy beads of sweat stood on the murderer's forehead. He trembled like a leaf shaken by an autumn wind. His body was limp, and the miserable wretch was dragged before the bar of justice. As the crowd caught sight of him it arose in one mass, and the combined efforts of a dozen officers failed to quiet what nearly resulted in a violent mob. The murderer's head was bowed low, and it was with extreme difficulty that he stood up. Never before in the history of the Cook county Criminal Court has a murderer stood before a judge so terror stricken. The guards with the prisoner took positions before the court. Scores of people jumped up and crowded

"There is the thing that killed the Mayor," cried one man.

"Keep back! Keep back! Sit down or we will eject you," shouted the bailiffs. Prendergast held his hat in his right hand and directed his eyes toward the door, while he crossed his hands before him. His entire frame was in a quiver. His limbs fairly trembled. Jailer Morris said the wretch clung to his arm as if his life was in danger. The judge addressed the prisoner and the latter inclined his head upward, rolled his eyes and parted his thin lips as if to speak. Evidently he had planned an outburst of ravings, but the presence of the court and the crowd awed Jack Fitzgerald, clerk of the court, opened the indictment which had been handed in by the grand jury and said: "Patrick E. Prendergast, on Nov. 1 the grand jury indicted you on the charge of murder. Are you guilty or not guilty' As the clerk uttered the word "murder" Prendergast turned an ashen hue and his dry lips parted still more. His respirations came only with difficulty, and many whispered: "He will faint before they get through with him." "What is your plea, Patrick Eugene Prendergast?" asked the court. "Guilty or not guilty?" The murderer's lips moved, but no sound came forth. He was speechless with fright. "Guilty or not guilty?" again sternly demanded the judge. "Not guilty," answered Prendergast a little louder, as he looked up at the judge, his face working nervously. "Have you an attorney?" asked Judge Horton. "No," answered the assassin. "Do you expect to employ one?" continued the court. "Yes, I expect to," answered the prisoner, as he shifted about uneasily, his small, blue eyes darting from one face to another "Well, he is entitled to a continuance until he secures counsel," remarked Judge Horton. "If he does not get a lawyer I shall have to appoint some one to defend him. You may take him back to jail, Mr.

Jailer Morris turned the prisoner about and hurried him back to his cell. When seen by a reporter Prendergast's lips twitched nervously, and he nad evi-"How are you to-day?" asked the re-

"Not very well," replied Prendergast. "But I don't care to talk to you." "Who will you employ as your attor-"I don't know yet. I had hoped to secure attorney A. S. Trude, but I see he is against me. Prendergast has been very nervous lately. He knows that every prisoner in the jail is against him and he greatly fears that he will be mobbed. Several times he has asked his guard if it would be possible to prevent a mob from breaking in. Jailer Morris and all the jail officials are positive that Prendergast is feigning insanity. They declare that when reporters are not around the prisoner talks rationally and never mentions any of his alleged peculiar ideas,

Price and Morris have had long talks with the murderer and they are emphatic in declaring him resposible for his foul deed. State's Attorney Kern when seen, said that the case would come to trial at the earliest possible day. Prendergast was hanged in effigy, last night, to a telegraph pole on Canalport avenue, near Halstead street. The hanging was witnessed by nearly one thousand people, all of whom yelled with derisior when the dummy figure of the assassin was Abe Redmond, a Notorious Criminal, Hanged to a Tree.

DRAKE'S BRANCH, Va., Nov. 2 .- Notorious Abe Redmond, the worst man that ever lived in Charlotte county, came to his death last night at the hands of a mob. He was arrested yesterday by an officer and a dozen assistants, and it was one of the few times he was ever captured without trouble. He mistook the officer for a friend. A few days ago he was after a negro to kill him, but caught the wrong however, without having beaten him nearly to death. He was taken before a justice CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 2.- The Seaman & of the peace, but for the want of evidence was acquitted later. After threatening a number of the best citizens in the vilest manner he acknowledged that he was the man who treated the negro so shamefully. and only waited an opportunity to kill the right one. The prisoner was taken to Duprez to be tried by Justices Booth and Crawfton. After a day spent in looking up witnesses he waived trial by the justices and was sent to jail. It being night, Constable Crutcher was ordered to take the prisoner to his house, which was on the way to the courthouse, under guard of three man. They arrived at Crutcher's house without any sign of disturbance. About 11 o'clock, while two of the guards were asleep and one on duty, the door was broken in with a crash and the men were covered with guns and pistols. Without a word the prisoner was taken out. It was CHICAGO, Nov. 2.-Fred T. Poston, for a thoroughly organized, orderly moseveral years cashier and confidential clerk | ery one knew his place, and in less than a minute all was as quiet as before the mob came. This morning the body of Redmond was found hanging to a tree near Crutcher's house. Abe Redmond's criminal career began when he was but a boy. Some hot words passed between him and his father. Shortly afterwards the old man was walking along with his gun on his shoulders when Cumback has lectured in nearly every he was suddenly shot dead by Abe from State in the Usion, and in the best courses, behind the corner of a fence.
